Casa Rural RÚBEL

Datos Generales

description: What was once in 1949 storage room for keeping farm tools and cattle was converted in 2005 as a small rural house for tourism purposes. It was given the name Ríbel, which was a nickname that the owner was known by. He was a carpenter and responsible for restoring the ceilings and a large part of the furniture in the house. The larder and the decorative elements in the bathroom and lounge have been handmade by the owner with tea wood, which is the name of the wood taken from the heart of the Canarian pine tree. The house is cosy and fully equipped and ideal for spending a pleasant and peaceful holiday in a rural environment.

From the large terraces you can contemplate the beautiful sea views and on clear days you can see the other islands of Tenerife and La Gomera. For early risers the beautiful sunrise on this island is well worth seeing
